SOUND OF LEGENDARY ROCKERS QUEEN ARE BROUGHT TO LIFE IN STAGE SHOW FEATURING NATIONAL TOURING BAND "CELEBRATING QUEEN" AND LOCAL MUSIC STUDENTS

Torrington, CT – On Saturday, March 6 at 8pm, the Warner Theatre will present Celebrating Queen with the Bohemian Rhapsody Orchestra. This 2 hour tribute to legendary rockers Queen features CT native Joe Archambeault aka JJ Midnight, the one voice that can recreate the late, great Freddie Mercury's range like nobody else. Prior to the performance, the band will be rehearsing with students from the Warner's on-site school for the arts, the Warner Theatre Center for Arts Education, who will play a role in the concert as a backup choir for some of Queen's signature songs throughout the show.

In addition to honoring the legendary rock band, Celebrating Queen tours throughout the country promoting the positive health effects of singing. Archambeault and the band will be using Queen's music to teach the Warner's students about singing for your health.

"A lot of things people do are good for themselves, like yoga, like meditation, like walking, like running, but a lot of people don't know singing is awesome for you," explains Archambeault. He points out that singing can be great for lung function and depression.

Queen was number one worldwide for more than a decade and their music is some of the most played in the world - Bohemian Rhapsody, Somebody To Love, Killer Queen, Bicycle Race, Fat Bottomed Girls, Show Must Go On and so many more. You will hear all of those famous Queen vocal arrangements that Freddy Mercury made famous including the crazy high notes and intricate harmonies driven by a high-octane rock band!

Tickets for the show are $29.50 and can be purchased by calling the Warner box office at 860-489-7180 or online at www.warnertheatre.org

Archambeault and the Warner's Director of Education Isabel Hinman are available for interviews upon request.
